

Tips on Successful Information Searches

Text:

- In general, text searches respond more quickly than map searches.
- Try identifying your research topics with two factors (such as last name and source). Using more factors can require more computer analysis time.

Maps:

- For best results, use a fast modem. The system will work with a slower modem, but be prepared to wait a few moments between each selection.
- For best results, use this system during off-peak Internet use times (first thing in the morning and late afternoons).
